Hi Malana,
Thank you so much! There are hundreds of stories I can share. And I will go down the list of questions you shared, that helped me clarify some things.
My experience with Liana's teachings is that she teaches and guides, but doesn't make us do anything or make our decisions. She teaches so much on discernment omg 🤯 .

I think it's amazing that you were able to catch yourself on the heavy drinking and get to a place, where, if you want to sip on an occasional drink, you know yourself + know you are in control, and do not feel like you are doing anything "wrong" by way of Liana! She is not anyone's authority figure, and your story very much shows that.

1. I have been in Liana's educational groups and support groups since September 2020. I have read about many women in need of support and guidance. Once thing that stands out in all situations is:

"I keep remembering Liana tell all of us in the old Facebook chats and Q and A's, not to do anything illegal when it comes to divorce and child custody and to document anything even small that the spouse does illegally."

Also, she never told us what to do!!! I really don't understand why some of her students didn't understand this. She would tell us drinking alcohol is very harmful for your health, but she would never tell us not to drink alcohol. ~Anahit Pashaian

2. I wish more people understood that first and foremost Liana teaches her students discernment. She wants her students to make their own decisions, never making any decisions for us. NEVER! I don't think she wants that responsibility. She taught us and continues to teach us what evil looks like and what Jesus wants people on Earth to learn. She really wants hear teachings to empower women and for us to reach our full potential. Her teachings are such a gift to me. I am so grateful to learn so much about why I have certain reactions to conflict or
3. When I joined Liana's community I used to drink alcohol at parties. I would over drink according to me, my husband and parents. No one ever labeled me an alcoholic or said I have any problem, but I wanted to stop drinking too much at parties. From what I learned from her Instagram posts from March 2020 to June 2020, I decided to stop drinking alcohol. Me, my husband and my parents were all so happy and supportive. My friends, I would party with were not too happy, but support my not drinking. I am so thankful that it was very easy for me to just stop and I am so lucky that my close family and friends were supportive of my decision. I would read about such backlash from loved ones in the group that they stopped drinking and people were not supportive and so mean. After several years of not drinking I will very occasionally sip on a wine or beer, but I will never overdrink and feel drunk again. And I am so happy that I am in full control of what I consume. Liana never told me to stop drinking; she shared facts about alcohol and I made the decision for myself. This is something she always teaches is that we have the information whether from her or another outlet and we make our own decisions. I am very happy with my decision, I never want to feel drunk again. My family and I are so happy that her education helped me stop the alcohol consumption.
4. I am standing and supporting and so very grateful for Liana and her teachings because she has taught me about the true me. So crazy to say, but her teachings make me understand my reactions, emotions, likes and dislikes and so much more. How lucky am I to have learned from Liana? So many of my questions that no one could answer in my life she is answering all the time.

Best regards,

Anahit
